Reroof Checklist

Yes	No	Requirements
		Completed Permit Application
		Contractor Registered with the City
		Notice of Commencement if the job is valued over $2500
	Property Records Card, which can be located at the Lake County Property Appraiser's website at www.lakecopropappr.com
		A roofing plan showing all the pitches and the product approval number for each different pitch (see roofing package for an example)
		Product approval for each different product being installed
		Manufacturer installation specifications that are specific to the job being proposed.
		Is this a roofover, where the existing shingles are not removed, the product approval information must indicate that the shingles were tested in this manner. If the product approval information does not indicate installation over existing shingles, then you will need local product approval and an engineer will need to provide evidence that the installation will provide the same level of protection as the product approval for installation over a wood deck.
		You have read this entire sheet including the instructions for inspections below.

Instructions: Be sure that you have submitted all the items on the list above. All reroof permits will be reviewed by the Building Official prior to submittal.

The inspection request: We ask that you email your inspection to INSPECTIONS.NET Please send the request in the following format: Address (156 S. Lake Ave), Type of inspection (Final), Permit Number (123-09-10B), Contact Number of someone that can be contacted the day of the inspection incase there is a problem with either access to the job or a simple problem with the installation. Typical inspection for a reroof are a dryin and a final inspection. The dryin inspection will consist of felt properly laid and nailed along with flashing and drip edge properly installed, lapped and nailed. Then a final inspection. You can avoid the deck nailing inspection and go right to the dry in by signing the affidavit and providing pictures the day of the dryin inspection.

Typical deficiency items that get turned down on an reroof inspection include, but are not limited to the following items.

- 1. Drip edge not properly lapped or fastened.
- 2. Felt paper run over the drip edge and not properly sealed.
- 3. Starter course not properly sealed between starter and first shingle. This includes the entire perimeter including the rake. We inspect this by gently lifting up on the edge of the first course of shingle. This shingle should be hard to lift up, but if it comes up very easily, the job will be turned down.
- 4. Roof penetrations, including the ridge vent not properly sealed.
- 5. Blocking required along edges of penetrations exceeding 144 square inches. This is a very common item for off ridge vents. Please be sure to retrofit blocking if not already installed.
- 6. Improper nailing of deck.
- 7. Felt fastener pattern not correct. The rule of thumb is you should not be able to place a 12" x 12" square anywhere on the roof deck without touching a fastener. Please see the permit tech for a fastener schedule.
- 8. No flashing in areas where there is a change in pitch.
- 9. Shingles installed that do not meet pitch requirements (too low of a pitch).
- 10. Shingles trimmed too much or not enough. Follow mfg specs that require anywhere from a 3/8" to 1/4" overhang over the drip edge.
- 11. Permit card must be posted on the job and visible from the road as soon as work is started.
- 12. No permit card on the job or no mfg specs on the job for inspection...

Policy Statement

Subject: Reroof inspections

Summary: All reroofing inspections must follow the procedure below.

Significant Issues: Inspectors need the manufacture's installation specs on the job for all inspections, and a check and balance system must be in place for the affidavits that are signed and placed in the file.

Policy: All reroof's will undergo an in-progress inspection and a final inspection. The purpose of the in-progress inspection is to verify the underlayment requirements and compliance with the new Hurricane Mitigation requirements. In addition, the manufacture's installation specifications must be on the job at both inspections. In no case will the in-progress inspection slow down the contractor. The contractor must call for the in-progress inspection for the day he will be starting the job so the inspector can visit the job at the appropriate time.

Effective Date: October 1, 2007

Affidavit of Compliance

As the roofing contractor/OWNER pulling the permit for this job located at in Groveland, FL, I am certifying that I will comply with Rule 9B-3.0475, which requires me to verify the fastener spacing and the adequacy of the existing roofing attachment schedule, as well as other requirements. If it is determined that the roofing fasteners are not sufficient per section 201.1 of the "Hurricane Mitigation Retrofits for Existing Site-Built Single Family Residential Structures" manual, I will assure that they are upgraded in accordance with section 201.1 of the aforementioned manual. I further understand that I may take digital pictures to submit to the Building Department to become part of the permanent file if I choose. I also understand that there are other requirements that may apply to this roof replacement, and that I am responsible for complying with those requirements.

Reroof Policy and Procedures

As we all know, in Florida it can be bright and sunny one moment and then raining the next. This poses a problem when it comes to installing a new roof and complying with the minimum inspection requirements. The code has specific requirements for nailing of the plywood deck, installation of felt, valley linings and drip edge and then finally the installation of the shingles.

The problem occurs when one wants to cover the nailing prior to inspections. At this point you run the risk of the interior of the house being damaged should a heavy rain come out of nowhere. A reasonable alternative is the nailing affidavit, which allows you as the roofing contractor to certify the nail installation, and provide pictures that certify other requirements associated with a reroof. Of course, we would want adequate pictures taken to verify that the nails are the correct nails installed with the correct spacing and are not over driven, and pictures that show compliance with the other requirements listed below. If you do not take adequate pictures, you could be forced to strip back shingles to verify compliance with the code.

Deck Nailing – 8d nails spaced no greater than 6" o.c. with nail heads flush with the roof deck. For 1x12 roof deck material, two nails per rafter crossing. Many jobs get turned down due to nails being overdriven. Do not over drive your nails.

Drip Edge – The Florida Building Code requires drip edge to be overlapped by a minimum of 3" and to be nailed at 4" o.c. .

Underlayment shall be attached to a nailable deck in a grid pattern of 12 inches (305 mm) between the sidelaps, with 6-inch (152 mm) spacing at the sidelaps.

Flashing – any of the recognized methods outlined in R905.2.8.2.

Nails - Please take a picture of the nail box showing that they are 8D, .113 with .028 nail heads.

Pictures must be present at the final inspection along with the signed affidavit. Pictures must be able to indicate proper installation of valley lining, drip edge, deck nailing and underlayment as outlined above
